1. How regulated? Details of regulator/s	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> The Television and Radio Broadcasting Law (the Broadcasting Law) expressly excludes internet-based broadcasting from the activities governed thereunder.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> There are no other specific regulations relating to the broadcasting of Online Curated Content (OCC).</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Additionally, under the Television and Video Law (the Video Law), video content (including video content outside of Myanmar) being broadcast must first be certified with a Video Censor Certificate issued by the Video Censor Board (VCB), which is formed under the Ministry of Information with the mandate to review the suitability of video content for exhibition in Myanmar in accordance with its internal policies and directives, which are not publicly available. The members of the VCB consists of both government and non-government personnel. The extent of the real application for this requirement remains vague.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> Although there are no specific existing rules applicable to the broadcasting of online curated content, it is likely that such services will fall under the purview of the Ministry of Information (MOI) should the Myanmar Government undertake the regulation of OCC TV in the future.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> We note that several OCC players such as Netflix have already entered the Myanmar market.</li> </ul>
2. Copyright protection?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> In 2019, as part of a set of new laws which represent a new intellectual property protection framework, the new Copyright Law 2019 (the Copyright Law) was passed and enacted by Myanmar’s Parliament. The Copyright Law has come into effect on 31 October 2023 in accordance with the State Administration Council (SAC) Notification No. 218/2023.</li> <li><input type="checkbox"/> To implement the Copyright Law, the Ministry of Commerce (MOC) issued the “Copyright Rules” under Notification No. 70/2023, which has come into effect on 31 October 2023. The Copyright Rules set out the procedures for the registration of copyright and related rights. The Copyright Law 2019 and the Copyright Rules (collectively, the New Copyright Regime) have replaced the previous Burma Copyright Act 1914.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li><input type="checkbox"/> We note that the Central Committee for IP Rights (CCIPR), was formed on 6 March 2020. The CCIPR is responsible for development of policies in relation to the protection of intellectual property rights. Its formation represents a further step towards the implementation of Myanmar’s intellectual property protection framework, which includes the Copyright Law 2019 as one of a suite of four new intellectual property protection laws.</li> </ul>

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li data-bbox="562 212 1386 384">□ Under the Copyright Law, copyright infringements such as the unauthorised reproduction, transmission, or distribution of copyrighted works, possession of infringing goods for commercial purposes, and importation of infringing items into Myanmar, among others, are regarded as criminal offences.</li> <li data-bbox="562 392 1386 708">□ The Copyright Law also provides civil remedies to the owners of a copyright that has been infringed. Any disputes related to the registered copyrights or related rights can be settled through court proceedings or by arbitration under the Copyright Law. The Supreme Court is also given authority to establish intellectual property courts (through series of Notifications 961-965/2023). Copyrights or related rights owners may file both miscellaneous civil cases for provisional measures and criminal or civil cases with intellectual property courts.</li> <li data-bbox="562 716 1386 999">□ The Copyright Law bolsters the current regime (copyright infringement is still a criminal offence under the Copyright Law) by granting copyright protections to foreign copyrights which are protected under international treaties relating to copyright protection to which Myanmar is a member state. Such international treaties include the Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) and the ASEAN Framework Agreement on Intellectual Property Cooperation.</li> <li data-bbox="562 1007 1386 1107">□ Additionally, the Copyright Law provides for exemption that short extracts can be used from material as long as the use of such short extracts does not result in damage to the interests of the owner.</li> <li data-bbox="562 1115 1386 1390">□ The New Copyright Regime is now deemed to be in full function. The official forms for copyright and related rights matters are available in Notification No. 73/2023 issued by the MOC. In February 2024, Myanmar’s Intellectual Property Department (IPD) began accepting applications for copyright and related rights registration under the Copyright Law 2019.
