

2024 AVIA Regulating for Growth – Pay TV Matrix for New Zealand

Questions	Pay TV	Foreshadowed changes?
1. How regulated? Details of regulator/s	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) is an industry created body that self-regulates most advertisements. The ASA creates Codes of Practice and issues Guidelines around those Codes, and has a Complaints Board that can determine complaints within the ASA’s jurisdiction and an Appeal Board that can hear appeals from the Complaints Board. <input type="checkbox"/> Broadcasting Standards Authority (BSA) is a government agency that can determine complaints around advertisements alleged to breach the Code of Broadcasting Standards that have been broadcast on television (excluding on demand services). There is also a specific Pay Television Code administered by the BSA. <input type="checkbox"/> Commerce Commission is a government agency that monitors and can enforce breaches of the Fair Trading Act 1986 (misleading and deceptive conduct) and some other specialist statutes. The Commission has recently taken action in respect of advertisements around telecommunications and homeware/building supplies. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> In 2017 the Digital Convergence Bill was paused. <input type="checkbox"/> In 2023 there was a recommendation by the Department of Internal Affairs for a single regulator that would monitor and regulate all forms of media and online content. The BSA also recommended statutory/regulatory amendment. However, the new National-led government has decided not to proceed with this proposal, given its views on regulating speech.
2. Copyright protection?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Copyright Act 1994 provides strong protection of copyright material in New Zealand. <input type="checkbox"/> Recent amendments in 2022 as a result of free trade agreements have strengthened protections of communicating sound recordings (s 174B). <input type="checkbox"/> Amendments in 2008 imposed prohibitions on technological protection measure (TPM) circumventions, and those prohibitions have been enforced to block advertising streaming devices (Kodi boxes) intended to circumvent subscription TV services. But loopholes permit the use of VPNs to avoid geoblocking. <input type="checkbox"/> Amendments in 2011 created a graduated response mechanism to address online copyright infringement. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> In 2018-2021, there was a Review of the Copyright Act 1994. The review potentially heralded a significant upgrade of protections and aimed to make many of the provisions technologically neutral. <input type="checkbox"/> However, that review has been put on hold and has not progressed.

	However, due to the cost, that mechanism has been used infrequently.
3. Convergence and new technologies	<input type="checkbox"/> Framework is technology-neutral and even-handed. <input type="checkbox"/> Small size of market limits competition. <input type="checkbox"/> A number of online on-demand services are operating.
4. Licensing of foreign channels Allowed, prohibited or unregulated?	<input type="checkbox"/> Unregulated.
5. Licence fees and taxation	<input type="checkbox"/> Licence fees for satellite and digital television are modest. <input type="checkbox"/> For linear television services a licence fee to Kordia Ltd (owned by the New Zealand government) is required. <input type="checkbox"/> Government levy on broadcasters (but not advertisers) for the BSA where the broadcaster's total revenue from broadcasting in New Zealand exceeds $500,000. The levy to the BSA is calculated as total review x 0.00051. <input type="checkbox"/> Goods and Services Tax (GST) of 15% applies to subscriptions including those sold in New Zealand by overseas businesses if their supplies of services to New Zealand-resident consumers exceed the threshold of NZ$60,000 in a 12-month period.
6. Rate regulation Including wholesale and retail rate regulation and whether there are any price controls on eg. basic tier	<input type="checkbox"/> None.
7. Programme packaging Including tiering, bundling, any mandatory a la carte	<input type="checkbox"/> No restrictions. <input type="checkbox"/> Packaging programming into differential packages is common. <input type="checkbox"/> In addition to packaging of programming there is also a common practice of bundling together services, such as pay television and broadband.
8. Restrictions on advertising	<input type="checkbox"/> Restrictions on advertising are through:

13. Consumer protection Including cooling-off period, termination rights and payment mechanism	<input type="checkbox"/> Pay TV is covered by general consumer protection legislation, including the Fair Trading Act and Consumer Guarantees Act. <input type="checkbox"/> Consumers may report to the New Zealand Commerce Commission any unfair terms in standard form contracts for services. The Commission may report these complaints to a court which has the power to prohibit the use of the term.
14. Entering a new market: FAST TV	<input type="checkbox"/> No restrictions.
15. Data handling	<input type="checkbox"/> All personal information collected about New Zealanders by a New Zealand or overseas agency carrying on business in New Zealand is subject to the Privacy Act 2020. <input type="checkbox"/> The Privacy Act places limits on what information may be collected, retained, used and disclosed and to whom that information may disclosed to . The Privacy Act requires that when collecting and using personal information, the person must know that their information is being collected, why it is being collected, how it will be used and where it will go including how it will be stored. <input type="checkbox"/> The Privacy Act applies to personal information held outside New Zealand and also places significant restrictions on transferring personal information outside New Zealand. The Privacy Act also impose obligations on storage of that information requiring “security safeguards as are reasonable” to prevent loss, access, use, modification and other misuses.
Other country-specific information not already covered	<input type="checkbox"/> Where the pay television service is using an online platform the service will be an “online content host” and subject to the Harmful Digital Communications Act 2015 . The Harmful Digital Communications Act prohibits disclosure of communications that causes harm to a person and would cause harm to an ordinary reasonable person.
